Rebulet dated 11/6/52.

The following is a summary of the pertinent information contained in files of the Seattle Office concerning the above captioned individual.

ROSELLINI has, for several years, been a member of the Washington State Senate. He has served as Democratic Floor Leader of that body and within the past year has been Chairman of a State Legislative Committee which conducts public hearings inquiring into local crime conditions throughout the state. ROSELLINI was an unsuccessful candidate for governor on the Democratic ticket during this years primary election.

Criminal Activities and Associations

In 1944 ALBERT ROSELLINI was listed as the attorney for BILLIE PARENTE, a former pimp, gambler, bunco artist, and connected with narcotics in Seattle.

King County Sheriff HARLAN S. CALLAHAN, former Chief of Detectives, Seattle, JAMES LAWRENCE, and Confidential Informant [redacted] of known reliability, reported ROSELLINI was described as a fixer for individuals engaged in racket activities in Seattle and alleged that he was using his political prestige on behalf of some of the racketeers in Seattle. It was alleged that all white bootleggers and speak-easy proprietors retained ROSELLINI as their counsel. ROSELLINI reportedly had informed many speak-easy proprietors and bootleggers that he was able to handle the local prosecutor's office and obtain immunity from prosecution.

During the period of October 1945 to April 1946, DOROTHY KIRK advised ROSELLINI was the attorney for WILLIAM WESLEY KIRK. KIRK was described at this time as the leading Negro racketeer in the south end of Seattle and was reported to be the fixer with the Police Department for those desiring to operate gambling houses or houses of prostitution.

[redacted] of known reliability, has advised that ROSELLINI was a partner of WILLIAM KIRK in the tavern business conducted under the name of the New Elliott Cafe, 1203 Jackson Street, Seattle. ROSELLINI allegedly acquired the partnership interest in this business by virtue of the assistance which he gave to KIRK in securing a beer license for the premises, and informant stated that 1/3 of the net profits of the New Elliott Cafe went to ROSELLINI personally.

On October 10, 1945, [] of unknown reliability, advised that he recently came to Seattle to reside, and that after being in town for a time decided he would like to open up a combined gambling joint and speak-easy in this city. The informant realized that it would be necessary for him to "get fixed up" locally in order to be immune from police interference. Informant stated he was advised to see AL ROSELLINI. b7D

The informant stated he discussed this matter with ROSELLINI who inquired if the informant desired to have dice tables and card games. The informant replied in the affirmative. ROSELLINI further asked if the informant was interested in selling dope or having prostitutes working in his establishment. The informant advised ROSELLINI he was not interested in this. Informant advised ROSELLINI summarized the situation and advised him that he believed this could be arranged at a cost of $500.00 a month. ROSELLINI told informant, however, that at this time the "joints" were temporarily closed down and that as soon as the informant heard they were opening up again, for him to come back and see ROSELLINI.

The informant did not have an occasion to recontact ROSELLINI concerning this matter.

On January 3, 1946, Confidential Informant [] of known reliability, advised that every private club in Seattle, of which there were several score, was required to pay an initial $50.00 "script" fee to ROSELLINI for the issuance of script by the State Liquor authorities. Informant said this was a legitimate fee but did not provide immunity from State Liquor Board and police raids for violations of various state and city regulations attendant to the operation of the speak-easy. In addition, informant said the club owner had to retain ROSELLINI as legal counsel for a fee ranging from $50.00 to $150.00 per month and the club had to make minimum weekly payments of $100.00 in cash to ROSELLINI at his office. This money, according to the informant, was turned over to high state officials at Olympia, Washington. b7D

DIRECTOR, FBI

RE: ALBERT D. ROSELLINI
-- INFORMATION CONCERNING

It was again reported during the period of October 1946 to May 1947 that ROSELLINI was still the attorney for WILLIAM KIRK.

During the months of January and February 1947 a Grand Jury was convened at Seattle, Washington to inquire into certain irregularities which were alleged to have occurred in the conduct of King County affairs. ROSELLINI was subpoenaed before the Grand Jury to discuss his relationship with LLOYD SHORETT who was, at this time, County Prosecutor for King County. No information was developed before the Grand Jury that SHORETT was connected in any way with the activities of ROSELLINI. It was reported from various informants and law enforcement officials that ROSELLINI's influence as a fixer had waned considerably after the Grand Jury hearings.

During this same time former SA ERNEST A. JONSON, now associated as a certified public accountant with a Seattle accounting firm, advised that ROSELLINI was one of his firm's clients and that he, JONSON, recently audited ROSELLINI's books. He said that ROSELLINI's disclosed income for the year 1946 was $50,000.00 and he said that most of this income represented retainers fees from the operators of illicit speak-easies in Seattle. He stated that ROSELLINI is also interested in the operation of some of these "joints". JONSON also mentioned that ROSELLINI received a $1,500.00 monthly retainer from the Far West Amusement Company, which company's principal and sole activity was in connection with pinball and slot machines. It was the opinion of JONSON that the interest which ROSELLINI had acquired in the operation of some of the liquor joints in Seattle was perhaps due to the fact that ROSELLINI represented the owners of these establishments before the Washington State Liquor Board and that in return for his fee he accepted an interest in the establishment.

On November 16, 1948, GALE WAGNER, manager of the Fern Hotel, was arrested in a police raid and charged with prostitution. She was fined $100.00 and given 3 days suspended sentence. ROSELLINI acted as her attorney and provided $500.00 bond for her. It was also alleged that ROSELLINI was part owner of this hotel which operated openly as a house of prostitution in November 1948.

In 1948 JOHN ROSELLINI, the father of ALBERT ROSELLINI, made application for pardon after completion of sentence. On September 12, 1947 JOHN ROSELLINI pled guilty to violation of the Harrison Narcotics Act and was sentenced to serve one year and a day. Investigation in 1948 indicated JOHN ROSELLINI's conduct since his release from prison had been above reproach. In connection with JOHN's application, Chief of Police, Seattle, GEORGE D. EASTMAN (NA), was interviewed and advised that as far as he knew JOHN ROSELLINI had not been involved in any criminal activity since being released from prison. However, Chief EASTMAN, at this time, expressed his hopes for indicting ALBERT ROSELLINI in connection with his activities as attorney for various speak-easies and clubs in Seattle.

In February 1949 TOM DURHAM, Assistant Prosecutor of Whatcom County, former Assistant U. S. Attorney, Seattle, and considered extremely reliable, advised that State Senator ROSELLINI had taken $1,500.00 from one of his clients for the purpose of obtaining a beer license at the time ROSELLINI knew that such a license was impossible to obtain. DURHAM reported that ROSELLINI later gave back $1,000.00 of this amount and kept the other $500.00.

On May 17, 1952 BERNARD J. GALLAGHER, a member of the Legislative Committee of the State of Washington, investigating crime conditions in the State of Washington, advised an agent of the Seattle Office that he was of the opinion Senator ROSELLINI was only conducting crime hearings in Spokane for additional publicity and expense money.

In May 1952 Acting Chief of Police FRANK C. RAMON, Seattle, advised that WESLEY N. MILLER, former Captain of Detectives of the Seattle Police Department, is presently functioning as an investigator for the ROSELLINI crime committee. Chief RAMON stated that MILLER was fired by the Seattle Police Department June 12, 1940 for having conspired to reduce an attempted robbery charge to a drunk charge for an alleged sum of $500.00, as well as having had considerable previous complaints against MILLER, including participation in a drunken party with Negro women in which one girl was stabbed to death.

The General Intelligence Survey report dated May 31, 1952 contained the following information concerning the activities of ROSELLINI:

In April 1952 TOM JUDGE, investigator for the ROSELLINI Crime Investigating Committee, advised that rumors in Seattle were to the effect that a pay off of $65,000.00 was made to keep the Committee out of Seattle. JUDGE stated that he had no knowledge concerning any such payment. He further added the Committee intended to continue their hearings in Seattle on a limited basis.

Confidential Informant [] who has furnished reliable information in the past, advised that individuals who intended to operate bottle clubs and other places of entertainment, consider ALBERT ROSELLINI as a "fixer".

DIRECTOR, FBI

RE: ALBERT D. ROSELLINI
-- INFORMATION CONCERNING

DEAN TURNER, Washington State Liquor Control Board, furnished the following information:

ALBERT D. ROSELLINI, an attorney and also State Senator who has recently been carrying on crime hearings throughout the state, is a close associate and attorney for FRANK ANTHONY DE CARO and FRANK CALACURCIO. DE CARO and CALACURCIO are both notorious pimp and club operators in the Seattle area. ROSELLINI recently made contacts at Tacoma on behalf of the two above mentioned individuals to see if it was possible to make arrangements for them to open a club and house of prostitution. This is an unsubstantiated rumor to the effect that the Committee, headed by ROSELLINI, had received a pay-off to tone down the crime hearings in this area.

The Sub-Committee on State and Local Government, of which State Senator ALBERT D. ROSELLINI is chairman, recently recommended to the Legislative Council of the Washington State Legislature that there be established a "little FBI," i.e., a central state identification bureau "to aid local law enforcement officers in solving complex crimes."

On October 24, 1952 [] of known reliability, advised he had met AL ROSELLINI at a Democratic party held in the basement of the Maxwell Hotel on October 25, 1952. Informant advised this party was well supported and attended by all the ex-con - racketeer element. He stated the primary objective was to support Governor candidate MITCHELL and to oust LANGLIE who is alleged to be responsible for the recent Supreme Court action concerning the prohibition of slot machines in the Seattle area.

Confidential Informant [] of known reliability, on several occasions in 1949 advised that ROSELLINI had been in contact with THOMAS CARLYLE RABBITT and has discussed with him political matters such as changes which were then being made by the governor in the state's welfare and assistance program. SUBJECT: ALBERT D. ROSELLINI
GOVERNOR, STATE OF WASHINGTON
INFORMATION CONCERNING

ReBulet 6/12/57, requesting data concerning Governor ROSELLINI be forwarded by separate communication for dissemination.

With respect to PCI [REDACTED], the U. S. Veteran's file at Seattle, Washington has been reviewed and on the basis of the data contained therein, contact with [REDACTED] has been discontinued. The veteran's file reflects that [REDACTED] has 100% total disability because of post traumatic encephalopathy, psychoneurosis severe, manifested by chronic muscular convulsions. This condition was subscribed to head injuries. The file further reflects that as late as 1954, [REDACTED] was found 100% disabled and to have a schizoid personality, psychoneurosis traumatic epilepsy, psychomotor type. The doctor on this occasion doubted [REDACTED] had encephalopathy but stated there was no doubt as to his schizoid personality and the fact that [REDACTED] presented hysterical possibilities.

Further, the information furnished by [REDACTED] with respect to the appointment of Justice EDGAR W. SCHWELLENBACH as Chairman of the WASHINGTON STATE LIQUOR CONTROL BOARD was inaccurate since DON ABEL has been appointed to that position.

The data furnished to the Bureau related to the personal life of the Governor and was for the Bureau's intelligence. It is not believed this type of data is suitable for dissemination. Certainly, if it were disseminated and ever traced back to the Seattle Office, our present contacts and relations with state authorities would suffer. The Governor has been extremely friendly to the Seattle Office and it is believed that the Bureau should consider again the fact that this relates to the Governor's personal life and would be of doubtful significance to any other agency.

Because of [REDACTED]'s mental condition, the fact that certain of the data furnished was not reliable and for the other reasons set out, it is recommended to the Bureau that no further action with respect to this data be taken.

I thought you would be interested to know that I have learned that ED GUTHMAN, a writer for "The Seattle Times" and a former Pulitzer Prize winner, has for some time now been working exclusively on an investigation into the conduct and behavior of Governor ROSELLINI. GUTHMAN has been withdrawn from all of his assignments and is devoting his entire time to this project.

Wash.
GUTHMAN has gathered a great deal of information which I learned "The Seattle Times" is guarding very closely, in fact keeping the results of his inquiries locked in a vault. [redacted] who has provided a great deal of very reliable information, confirms this information and points out that he has learned that during the inquiry currently under way "The Seattle Times" investigators have developed information concerning illegal activities of ROSELLINI, much of which is documented. The information concerns ROSELLINI's registration at hotels and motels under his true name or aliases and his apparent registration with a number of different women. According to [redacted] many of these documents consist of records of campaign funds furnished ROSELLINI, which funds were not listed by him in his income tax returns . . . also records of various gifts made by him to a number of different women. According to [redacted] "The Seattle Times" has obtained absolute proof with regard to a number of contractors in the road building business located in Eastern Washington reflecting that these individuals had received substantial contracts from the State for road construction, and they in turn were paying money to ROSELLINI; further, that "The Seattle Times" has positive proof involving the First Vice President of the First National Bank of Seattle with ROSELLINI in pay-offs and that this situation apparently involves certain individuals in the State Patrol.

[redacted] has also advised that insofar as obtaining a liquor license is concerned, it cannot be done honestly and that the smallest cost involved in obtaining one would range from $1500 up. This same informant says that ROSELLINI has purchased considerable real estate, either under his own name or under a straw name, at the terminal ends of the contemplated floating bridge over Lake Washington and the terminal ends of a bridge now under construction over Hood's Canal in Washington.

I thought you would be interested to know that Agents of this office have talked to an individual who is known to be one of the sources of information used by ED GUTHMAN, a writer for the "Seattle Times" newspaper, in his threatened expose of Governor ROSELLINI. This matter was the subject of my letter captioned as above dated April 8, 1960.

This individual is DEWEY P. WHITTAKER, 5716 Orcas Street, Seattle, Washington. He was interviewed in connection with another matter and volunteered considerable information as set out below. He also indicated that he had furnished all of this information to former Washington Governor ARTHUR B. LANGLIE, to an investigator for the McClellan Committee, to the "Seattle Times", where he had given a written signed statement, to the Bureau of Internal Revenue in Seattle and now felt that it might be necessary for him to furnish the information to the Attorney General of the United States in order to "get some action".

WHITTAKER explained that in the early 1940s he had his own contracting business and had several jobs for the State of Washington in the construction of highways. On one job he lost a considerable amount of money and had to sell most of his equipment. In about 1944 and during the administration of former Governor MON C. WALGREN, WHITTAKER again attempted to get work on a highway being built near Ilwaco, Washington. He made several inquiries in Olympia and he was told by unrecalled sources that the person to see to obtain contracts in highway construction was HARRY FOSTER. It is WHITTAKER's recollection that FOSTER at that time was an attorney and had some connection with the Teamsters Union and DAVE BECK.

WHITTAKER had one meeting with HARRY FOSTER some time in 1944, date not recalled, during which meeting FOSTER told WHITTAKER that he could be of assistance in helping WHITTAKER obtain contracts because he considered WHITTAKER a friend of the administration of MON WALGREN. However, on the occasion of this first meeting, FOSTER was busy and made an appointment to see WHITTAKER at a later date. In the second meeting, date not recalled, WHITTAKER stated that FOSTER explained in detail the mechanics of obtaining contracts and the paying of 5% of the value of the contract to FOSTER. According to WHITTAKER, FOSTER explained that for each contract awarded, the firm receiving the contract had to pay FOSTER 5%, in cash which money was destined for the campaign fund of Governor MON C. WALGREN. Further, the payment of this 5% had to be made at the time the contract was awarded and before the construction started. WHITTAKER stated that he was interested in bidding on a hauling job which would involve the hauling of aggregate to be used in the construction of the highway near Ilwaco, and normally contractors would be reimbursed in the following manner. For each truck load of aggregate hauled to the job site, the job superintendent would give the truck driver a ticket which could be redeemed for cash from the State. WHITTAKER quoted FOSTER as saying that for the contractors who paid back 5% of the amount of the contract, the job superintendent would give their truck drivers three trip tickets for every two loads of aggregate hauled to the site.

WHITTAKER stated that he allowed FOSTER to explain this much of the proposition and then he told FOSTER bluntly that he could not participate in a scheme of this nature and that he wanted no part of it. He said FOSTER became infuriated and refused to discuss the matter further and in fact abruptly terminated their meeting. WHITTAKER saw FOSTER on several occasions afterward and FOSTER did not speak nor even acknowledge knowing WHITTAKER.

~~HENRY~~
WHITTAKER said that ~~FOSTER~~ is now a Judge of the Washington State Supreme Court and that when the DAVE BECK conviction for grand larceny was on appeal before that court, he believes the "Seattle Times" went to Judge FOSTER and advised him that they were aware of FOSTER's prior close connection with DAVE BECK and that this was responsible for FOSTER's disqualifying himself on the BECK case.

WASH.

WHITTAKER stated that he has heard rumors in Seattle from sources ^{WASH.} he does not recall at the present time, indicating that the [redacted] brothers, first names unknown, were acting as collectors for Governor ROSELLINI in connection with the awarding of licenses for cocktail lounges. He stated that in the past, $5,000.00 has been an average fee for the awarding of a new liquor license but there is a rumor now to the effect that ROSELLINI has obtained $15,000 for one liquor license.

During the course of this interview it was noted that WHITTAKER hesitated frequently and appeared to experience difficulty in recalling names, dates and specific details. He admitted several times during the interview that his memory is failing.

Re: ALBERT D. ROSELLINI
Governor of Washington

A source, who has knowledge of "The Seattle Times" newspaper, has furnished the following information.

ED GUTHMAN, a reporter for "The Seattle Times" and a former Pulitzer Prize winner, has been working exclusively on an investigation of the conduct and behavior of ALBERT D. ROSELLINI, Governor of the State of Washington. GUTHMAN and investigators for "The Seattle Times" have developed information concerning illegal activities of ROSELLINI, much of which is documented. Also, they reportedly have records of various gifts made by ROSELLINI to a number of different women.

"The Seattle Times" reportedly has obtained absolute proof indicating that a number of contractors in the road construction business located in Eastern Washington have received substantial contracts from the State of Washington for road construction in return for which they have paid money to ROSELLINI. "The Seattle Times" reportedly has positive proof involving the First Vice President of the Seattle First National Bank with ROSELLINI in payoffs and that this situation apparently involves certain individuals in the Washington State Patrol.

According to this source it is not possible to obtain a liquor license in the State of Washington without a cash payment to officials of the state government and that the smallest payment in this regard is $1,500.00.

For the information of the Bureau, I contacted Governor ROSELLINI on 2/16/61, at Olympia, Washington. Governor ROSELLINI had no particular problems with the Bureau in the State of Washington. He was extremely pleased with all of his relations with the Bureau. While talking with him, we discussed SAC Letter 60-59, Paragraph C, concerning the Young American Medal Awards. He was extremely interested in this program and advised that he would bear it in mind.

I was in Olympia, Washington, on the 16th of February and while there was talking to Attorney General JOHN O'CONNELL. He mentioned to me the current controversy that exists in the State of Washington concerning the members on the Liquor Control Board.

At the present time there are three members on that Board serving terms of nine years. Apparently at the request of Governor ALBERT ROSELLINI there is currently being considered legislation reducing these terms to six years. This would enable the Governor to appoint three new members of the Liquor Control Board.

The Chairman of the Liquor Control Board is a man by the name of DON ABEL. The other member is a man by the name of [REDACTED]. According to Attorney General O'CONNELL, ABEL has been the person who has "kept the lid on the Liquor Control Board" and quite obviously this has caused ROSELLINI a great deal of concern.

b7C

Mr. O'CONNELL pointed out that the Liquor Control Board purchases approximately 60 million dollars worth of liquor a year, and there is no question in his mind but what at present efforts are being made in order to provide the Governor an opportunity one way or another to benefit financially from these extensive purchases by appointing members to the Board, over whom he will have more control than he apparently has over [REDACTED] and ABEL.

I was in Spokane, Washington, on the 17th of February, and was talking to HOWARD CLEAVINGER, who is an SAC Contact and the Managing Editor of the SPOKANE CHRONICLE, a very good friend of ours. He volunteered that there was no question in his mind but what the primary purpose behind efforts made to reconstitute this Board was to enable the Governor to control the Liquor Control Board for his own interests.

I was talking to FRANK RAMON, FBI NA, Chief of Police, Seattle, Washington Police Department on April 12, 1961. He advised me on a confidential basis that his sources have furnished him information to the effect that Governor ROSELLINI and [redacted] of King County are contemplating taking steps to open up a house of prostitution in King County, to operate during the celebration of Century 21 in Seattle, which is to commence during the spring of 1962.

Chief RAMON advises that background of this as he understands it, is that some time in the past, [redacted] went to Las Vegas, Nevada, where he gambled quite heavily and lost a considerable amount of money. His losses were covered by a hoodlum by the name of FRANK COLACURCIO, FBI # 3467500. He said that according to his information COLACURCIO is to operate the house with the blessings of [redacted] and ROSELLINI.

In order to effect these plans, ROSELLINI has offered King County Prosecutor CHARLES CARROLL an appointment as a Judge of the Superior Court in King County. RAMON said that CARROLL has informed him confidentially that such an offer has been made and he is now debating the advisability of accepting it. Chief RAMON then continued, stating that unquestionably if ROSELLINI is successful in "promoting CARROLL up and out", then the King County Commission, composed of three Democrats, would be able to appoint CARROLL's successor which undoubtedly would be a Democrat, with ROSELLINI's blessings.

The losses suffered by [redacted] in this incident at Las Vegas have been reported to us previously by PCI [redacted] who said that the losses ran as high as $6,000.00.

I had written to you earlier concerning efforts on the part of Governor ROSELLINI to obtain control of the Washington State Liquor Board. I thought you would be interested to know that on May 3, 1961, [] a member of the 3-man Liquor Control Board, advised a special agent that he is definitely opposed to the efforts of Governor ROSELLINI to wrest control of the Liquor Board from [] and Board Chairman DON ABEL. The third chair on the board is currently vacant.

[] and ABEL are Republican holdovers from a previous administration.

[] advised that Governor ROSELLINI wishes to use the State Liquor purchasing system to build a political "war chest" and maybe even line his own pockets.

If Governor ROSELLINI could control the Liquor Control Board, he could direct the purchase of liquor by the State in its "state monopoly distribution system." He then could seek financial contributions from liquor firms desiring to do business with the State.

Mr. [] continued and said that he has no information indicating that anyone other than Governor ROSELLINI is trying to control the liquor distribution in the State, and that if present controls are not rendered ineffective by the Governor, the State would continue to receive honest supervision of its considerable liquor revenues.

Attorney General JOHN O'CONNELL, State of Washington, had previously advised me about Governor ROSELLINI's motives in endeavoring to change the complexion of the Liquor Control Board. Apparently []'s views on the matter confirm what Mr. O'CONNELL had previously told me.

While talking to Albert O Governor ROSELLINI in Olympia yesterday, he took occasion to point out that so far as the forthcoming elections are concerned, the Republicans don't have a ghost of a chance of defeating Senator Warren G. Magnuson for reelection, nor do they have a chance of defeating Representative Julia Butler Hanson.

He did say that it is apparent that the Republican Party is putting all its finances and backing into efforts to control the House of Representatives in the State. He said from the practical standpoint this is good politics because the party controlling the House of Representatives also controls the legislative council and it gives them a tremendous platform to control the activities of the legislative representatives during the following two years before the gubernatorial election in 1964. It was by controlling this council that he was able to become elected governor. He is fearful that the Republicans might be able to accomplish this.

Miss Gandy	✓

I contacted Governor ALBERT ROSELLINI at the State Capital in Olympia on July 19, 1962. He, of course, is very friendly although, as you know, has a somewhat tainted reputation.

He did tell me some interesting things about the effect of the Century 21 Exposition on the economy of this state. The state itself appropriated 11½ million dollars to underwrite the Fair. Eight million dollars of this was a direct appropriation, the balance of which was for the construction of the Colosseum, a large structure on the Fair grounds. He said that the state has already received 4 million dollars in increased excise taxes as a result of the Fair and that they expect the income from increased gasoline and tobacco and liquor taxes to be of such a volume, that with the sale of the Colosseum to the City of Seattle they will net approximately 2 million dollars profit.

This of course does not have any bearing on the profits that private business has derived from the Fair.

The attendance at the Fair has been much higher than expected, and the management of the Fair now predict that for the first time in history an exposition of this magnitude will be a financial success.

An informant of the San Francisco Division advised that he had received information from one [redacted] a bartender at the Dice Shakers Bar, San Francisco, that the head of the La Cosa Nostra in the State of Washington is or was the father of the Governor of Washington, Albert D. Rosellini, and that the Governor's father saved him, [redacted] from prison. [redacted] further told the informant that the headquarters for La Cosa Nostra is or was the Roma Cafe in Seattle. McClintock

The informant stated that [redacted] did not furnish any additional information concerning Rosellini's involvement with La Cosa Nostra and the informant was not in a position to make further inquiry regarding it.

[redacted] is apparently identical with [redacted] who is originally from the Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, area and who spent some time in the Pacific Northwest where he had been arrested as a disorderly person, vagrancy and served time at the U.S. Public Health Hospital for a narcotics violation in 1943.

Our Seattle Office has advised that the father of Governor Rosellini, John Rosellini, had been convicted in U.S. District Court in Tacoma, Washington, September 12, 1927, upon a plea of guilty for violation of the Harrison Narcotics Act and had served time at McNeil Island Penitentiary, receiving a release on July 5, 1928. He was the subject of an Application for Pardon After Completion of Sentence investigation in 1948, at which time individuals contacted regarded him as being a fit and responsible individual.

Our Seattle Office has reported that Roma Cafe is a family restaurant [redacted] and is in close proximity to municipal buildings and its clientele has been obtained largely from local and county government employees and members of various law enforcement agencies.

Memorandum to Mr. Belmont
Re: Albert D. Rosellini
Governor, State of Washington

Concerning Governor Rosellini, it is to be noted that he has been politically active in the State of Washington as a state representative, state senator, and finally assumed the office of Governor and may, in the near future, begin a campaign for a third unprecedented term as Governor. He has actively engaged in the practice of law in the Seattle area, including many criminal cases, and it has been reported at various times that he was most influential in being able to assist individuals regarding liquor licenses and was regarded by some sources as a "fixer" in the Seattle area. Some individuals have characterized Rosellini as a shrewd and cunning politician who endeavored to create the impression that he had influence in underworld circles. Further, he has taken advantage of his political prominence by deliberately creating the impression among underworld personalities that he had the reputation as a "fixer."

The Seattle Office is unable to evaluate [] assertion that the Governor's father, John, had saved [] from prison but the possibility exists that Rosellini may have represented [] in some legal matter. b6 b7C

No information has been received or developed to indicate any activity on the part of La Cosa Nostra in Seattle or in the State of Washington and no similar allegations have ever been received with respect to Governor Rosellini. No information has been received with respect to the Roma Cafe and it should be noted that any one who spent any time in the Seattle area would know that it is frequented on a regular basis by many Italian-Americans and local politicians. There is no information in the Seattle files to indicate that either the Governor or his father have ever been engaged in any manner in criminal activities other than the information already noted.

ACTION

Both the Seattle and San Francisco Offices believe that no dissemination of the allegations made by [] should be made in view of the fact that no corroboration of this information exists. Seattle and San Francisco have been instructed to be alert to any additional information of this nature relative to Rosellini during our continuing investigation of organized crime in those areas. San Francisco instructed to determine from informant if [] can be interviewed without disclosing the informant as source of original information. b6 b7C

For the information of the Bureau, I contacted Governor ROSELLINI on 7/31/64, at his office in Olympia, Washington.

Governor ROSELLINI was very friendly, and advised that he has no problems so far as the Bureau is concerned.

He said that he appreciated the Bureau's position in the law enforcement training program particularly, and stated he is going to lend his complete support to legislation to be re-introduced into the 1965 legislature to have a Washington Law Enforcement Officers Training Commission. He said that he intends to include this legislation as part of his legislative program, which he will urge the legislature to pass.

Governor ROSELLINI is fully aware of the Bureau's participation in the police training program and is mindful that the bill calls for the SAC to be an ex-officio member of the commission when established.

SUBJECT: GOVERNOR ALBERT D. ROSELLINI

I thought you would be interested in knowing that I saw Governor Rosellini in his office at Olympia on 7/31/64.

While talking to him he brought up the national campaign and advised that he had just completed meeting with his board of strategy to outline his own campaign for re-election. He said that he was becoming quite fearful over the prospects of the Democratic Party on a national basis, and that the repercussions from the race riots in Rochester and New York City, New York, were having a far greater impact than was originally suspected.

He said that they were giving serious consideration to the possibility of insofar as possible divorcing his own campaign from the national one. I personally think that it can't be done but he may do his best to try.

He advised that he and his political advisors are of the opinion that Senator Goldwater will make a much more formidable candidate than the current administration ever anticipated.

Governor Rosellini advised me that if the current "back lash" continues, he suspects that it may result in the upset of the present administration, together with a number of state democratic administrations.

Honorable [redacted]

The White House
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. [redacted]

Mr. [redacted] has requested a check of FBI files concerning Albert D. Rosellini, former Governor, State of Washington.

Mr. Rosellini has never been the subject of an FBI investigation; however, FBI files contain many references regarding allegations associating him with communist organizations and criminal underworld activities in the State of Washington. This information is summarized briefly as follows:

During the 1940's and early 1950's, Mr. Rosellini's name had been associated with communist fronts and organizations cited pursuant to Executive Order 10450. These organizations included the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee, American Youth for Democracy, National Negro Congress and the Pacific Northwest Labor School.

In the 1940's Mr. Rosellini was described as a "fixer" for individuals engaged in racket activities in Seattle and he was allegedly using his political prestige in behalf of some of the racketeers in Seattle, Washington.

The FBI received information in May, 1960, that Ed Guthman, then a reporter for "The Seattle Times," had been working exclusively on an investigation on the conduct and behavior of Albert D. Rosellini, Governor of the State of Washington. It was alleged that considerable information was developed concerning illegal activities of Rosellini. The information dealt with Rosellini's registration at hotels and motels under his true name or aliases and his apparent registration with a number of different women. It was also alleged that records of campaign funds furnished to Rosellini were not listed by him on his income tax returns. Mr. Guthman allegedly had records of various gifts made by Rosellini to a number of different women.

"The Seattle Times" reportedly had obtained information that a number of contractors in the road construction business in Eastern Washington had received substantial contracts from the State of Washington for road construction in return for which they paid money to Rosellini. It was also alleged that it was not possible to obtain a liquor license in the State of Washington without a cash payment to officials of the State Government. One source claimed that Rosellini purchased considerable real estate, either under his own name or under a straw name, at the terminal ends of the contemplated floating bridge over Lake Washington and at the terminal ends of a bridge then under construction across Hood Canal in Washington.

The FBI received information in April, 1961, to the effect that Governor Rosellini and [redacted] of King County, Washington, were contemplating taking steps to open up a house of prostitution in King County which would operate during the celebration of "Century 21" in Seattle. In order to accomplish this, Rosellini allegedly offered King County Prosecutor, Charles Carroll, an appointment as a Judge of the Superior Court in King County if Carroll would allow prostitution to flourish. b6 b7C

The father of former Governor Rosellini, John Rosellini, was convicted in U. S. District Court in Tacoma, Washington, on September 12, 1927, upon a plea of guilty for violation of the Harrison Narcotics Act and served time at McNeil Island Penitentiary. He was released on July 5, 1928.

The fingerprint files of the Identification Division of the FBI contain no arrest data identifiable with Mr. Rosellini based upon the background information submitted in connection with this name check request.

Sincerely yours,

You will recall that we conducted a special inquiry-type investigation concerning former Governor Rosellini at the request of the White House and during the investigation developed a great deal of derogatory information concerning him.

Jack Hood, Supervisor of Banking for the State of Washington, has given to Alternate Senior Resident Agent Robert H. Wick in Olympia a copy of a memorandum obtained from the Seattle Office of the Universal CIT Finance Corporation, concerning the establishment of small loan offices in Kennewick, Goldendale and Pasco, Washington, all of which are relatively small communities.

During the investigation of Rosellini, there were numerous allegations made concerning payoffs that had to be made to responsible state officials before a small loan license could be obtained. This memorandum reflects that precedent to obtaining a small loan license in Washington, the applicant had to pay 20% of the net profit to a contact in the vicinity of Kennewick, 10% to an individual described as a "hoodlum", and in addition $5,000 to the Governor, and $2500 to an attorney who would represent them in the application.

This, of course, is just further confirmation of the numerous allegations concerning the shenanigans surrounding the obtaining of a small loan license in this state under the Rosellini regime.

You will recall that we conducted an extensive investigation at the request of the White House concerning former Governor ALBERT D. ROSELLINI of this state.

The investigation was concluded and revealed quite clearly that ROSELLINI was a thorough scoundrel. He was interested, and evidently was bringing a lot of pressure to bear on Senator Magnuson to get him a federal appointment.

Simultaneously the Internal Revenue Service was conducting an investigation into ROSELLINI's financial activities.

[REDACTED] page of THE SEATTLE TIMES, called me today and told me confidentially that Senator Magnuson had called him and told him that, "We have got that thing killed here." He implied that ROSELLINI had withdrawn his interest in a federal appointment. Simultaneously the Internal Revenue Service discontinued their investigation of ROSELLINI.
